

limbfeil

By Lillian Galbraith

i could hear the wind

swaying your branches

from my bed

inside my home

tomorrow,

the arborist would come.

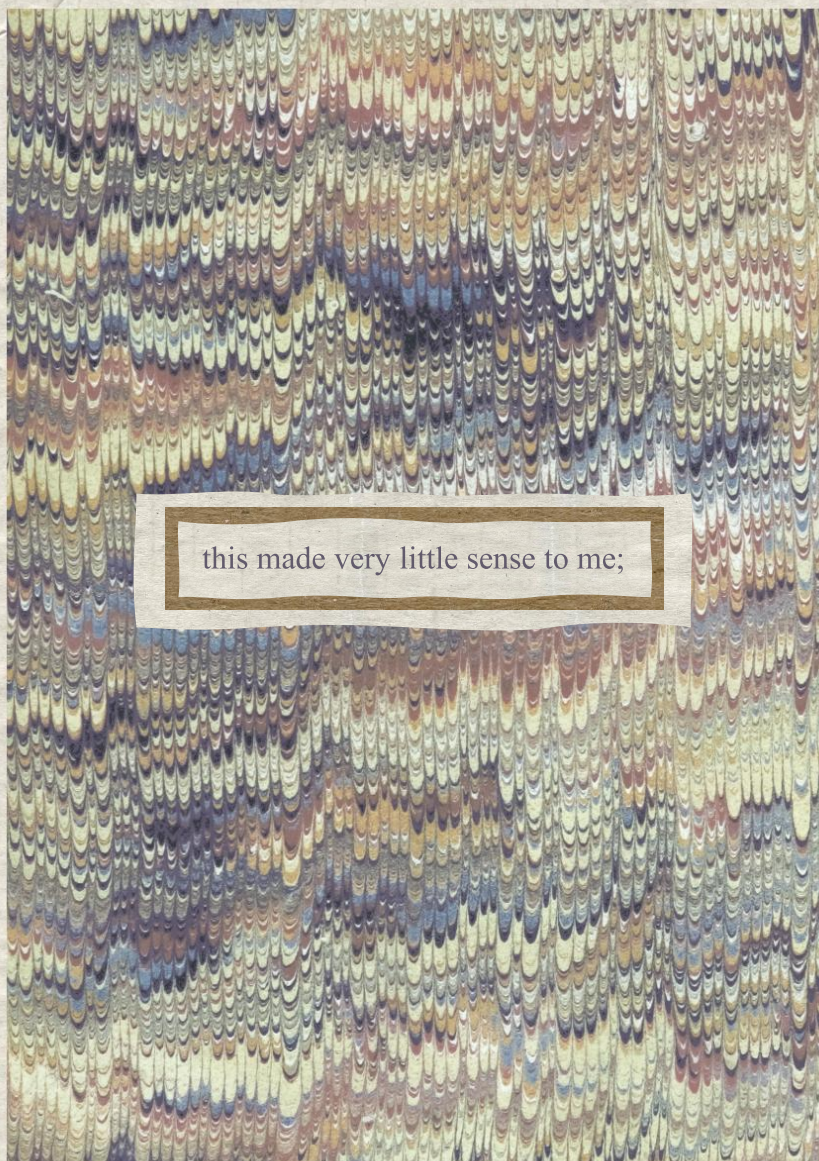

your smooth pearlescent body

dismantled

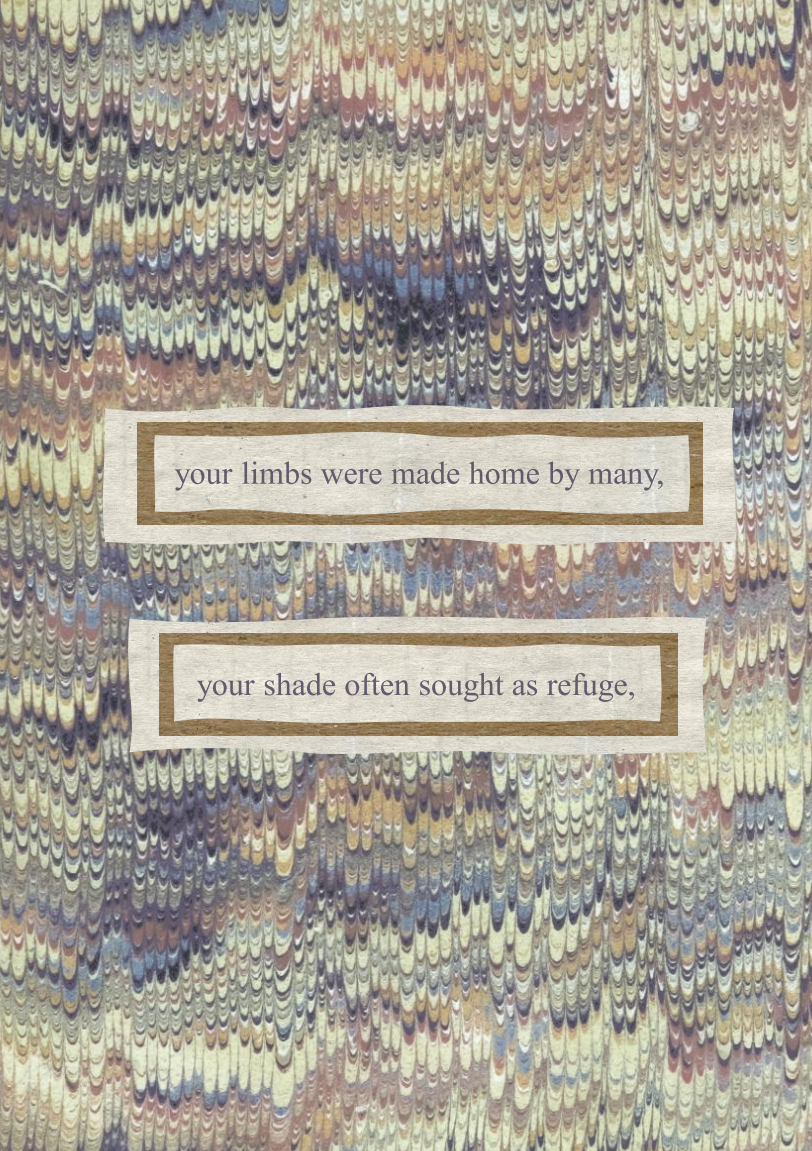

piece

by

piece

this made very little sense to me;

The background of the entire page is a dense, repeating pattern of marbled paper. The pattern consists of numerous small, overlapping, teardrop-shaped or scale-like motifs. These motifs are colored in a variety of earthy tones, including shades of blue, green, yellow, orange, and brown, creating a complex, textured visual effect. Two rectangular text boxes are superimposed on this pattern. Each box has a thin, light-colored border and a slightly darker, textured inner background where the text is placed. The text is in a simple, black, serif font.

your limbs were made home by many,

your shade often sought as refuge,

the lilting of bird calls harmonising with your

rustling leaves

floating through the

blossom-sweetened air

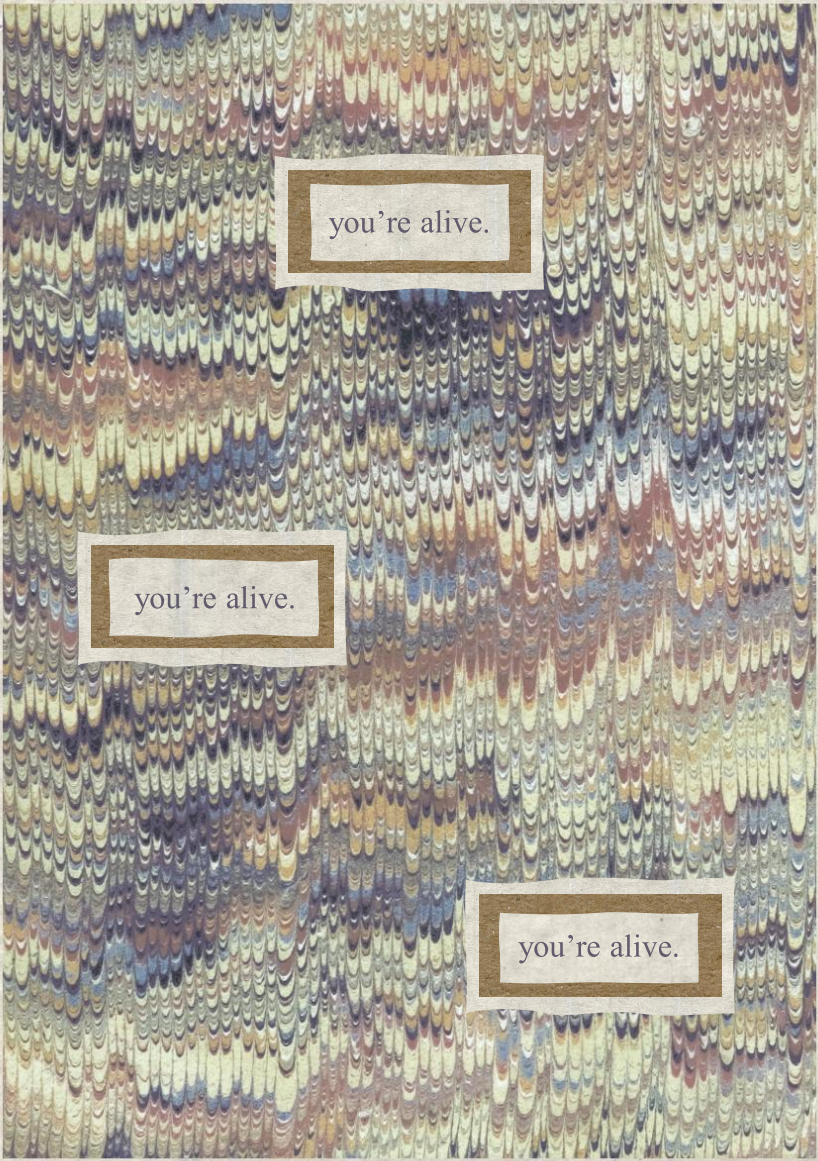

of those early spring mornings.

i thought

i was not alone

in my seeking of your comfort.

The background of the entire page is a dense, repeating pattern of marbled paper. The pattern consists of numerous small, teardrop-shaped or scale-like motifs arranged in vertical columns. The colors used in the marbling are a mix of earthy tones: yellows, browns, and oranges, as well as cooler tones like blues and purples. The overall effect is a complex, textured visual field.

you're alive.

you're alive.

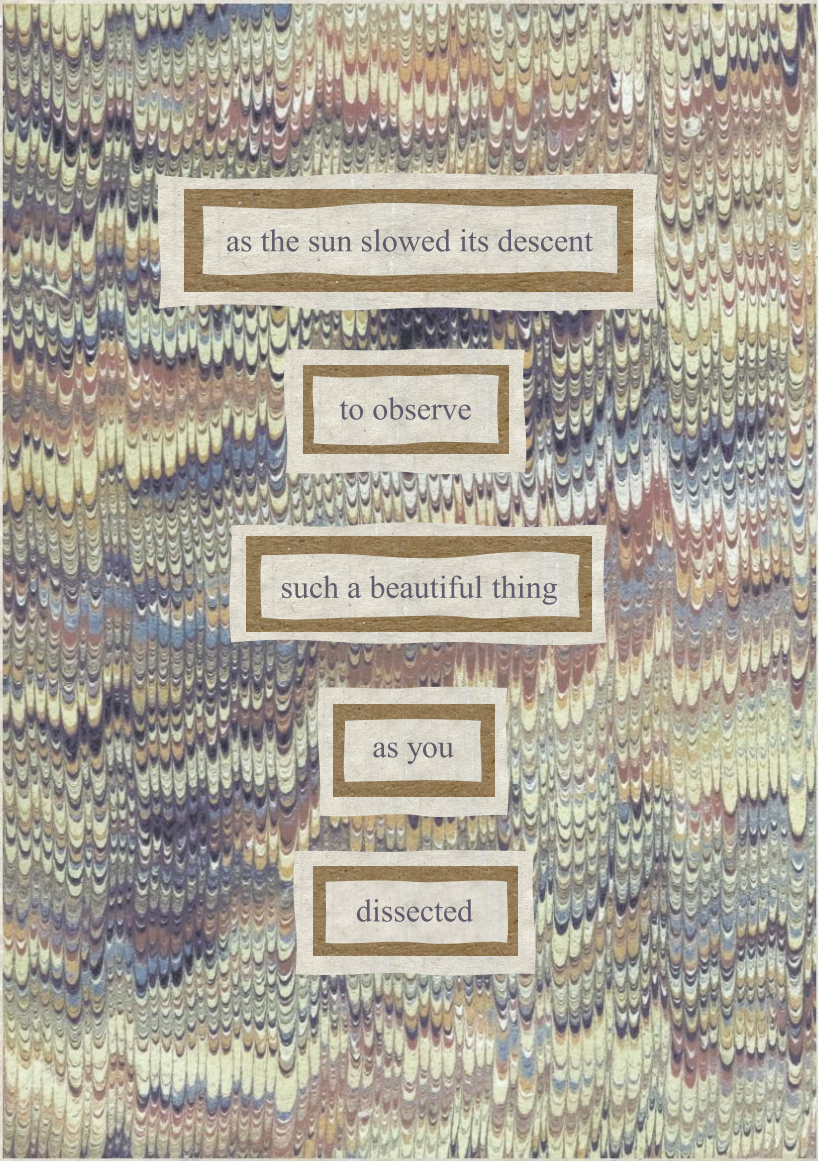

you're alive.

your limbs fell

too easy

next evening,

as the sun slowed its descent

to observe

such a beautiful thing

as you

dissected

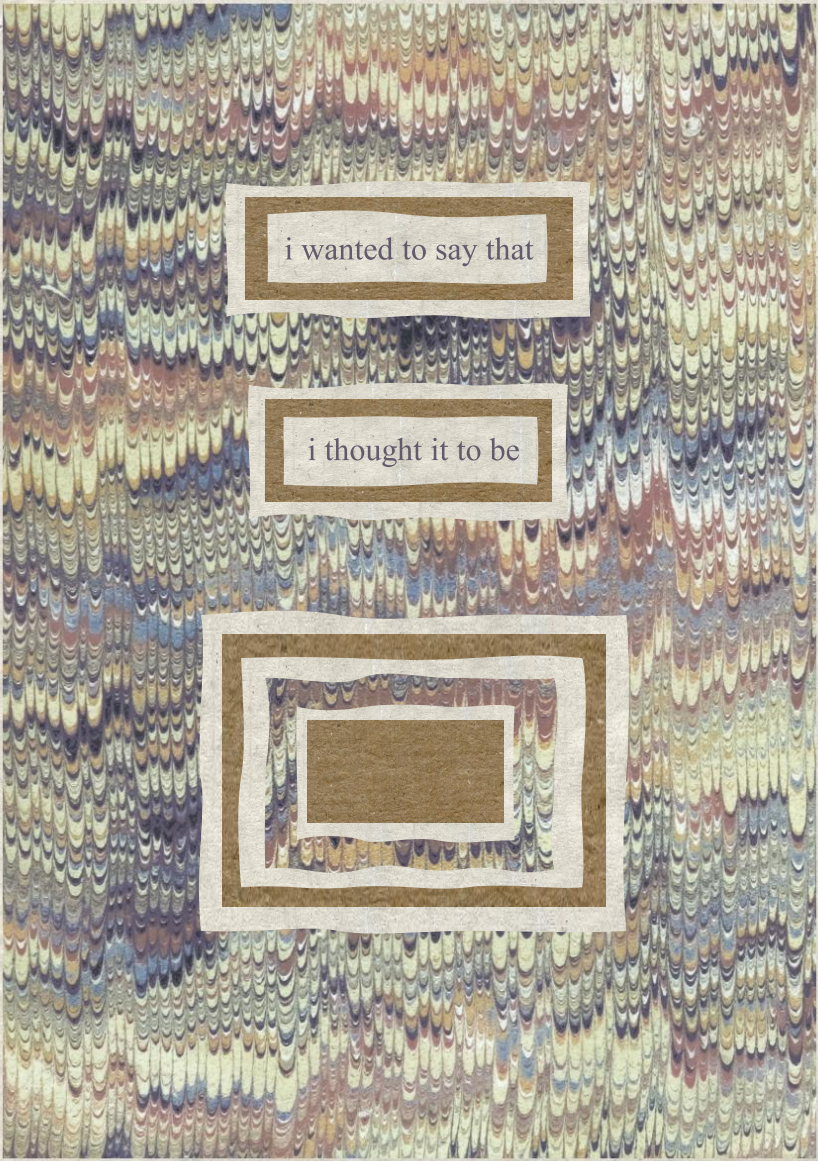

'have they not done nicely?'

i knew, they would ask.

'oh, yes, quite fine.'

i knew, i would answer.

The background of the entire page is a dense, repeating pattern of marbled paper. The pattern consists of numerous small, teardrop-shaped or scale-like motifs arranged in vertical columns. The colors used in the marbling are a mix of earthy tones: browns, tans, and yellows, accented with streaks of blue, green, and red. Overlaid on this pattern are three nested rectangular frames. The outermost frame is a simple white border. Inside it is a brown frame, and the innermost frame is a white rectangle containing text. The text is in a black, serif font and is centered within the white rectangle.

i wanted to say that i thought it to be

The background of the page is a piece of marbled paper with a dense, repeating pattern of small, teardrop-shaped motifs in shades of blue, yellow, and brown. Two rectangular text boxes with thin brown borders are placed on the page. The first box is at the top, containing the text "as your branches clambered". The second box is in the middle, containing the text "their way".

as your branches clambered

their way

to their roots

as the birds cried,

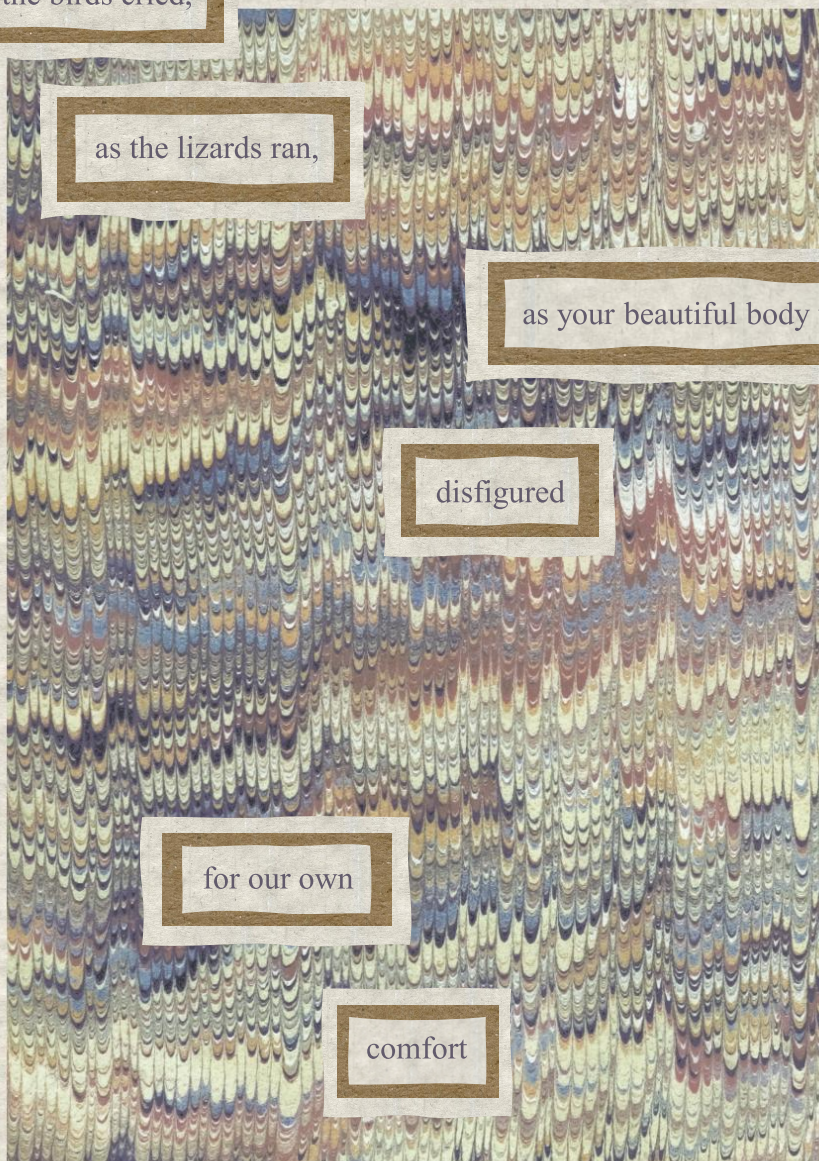

as the lizards ran,

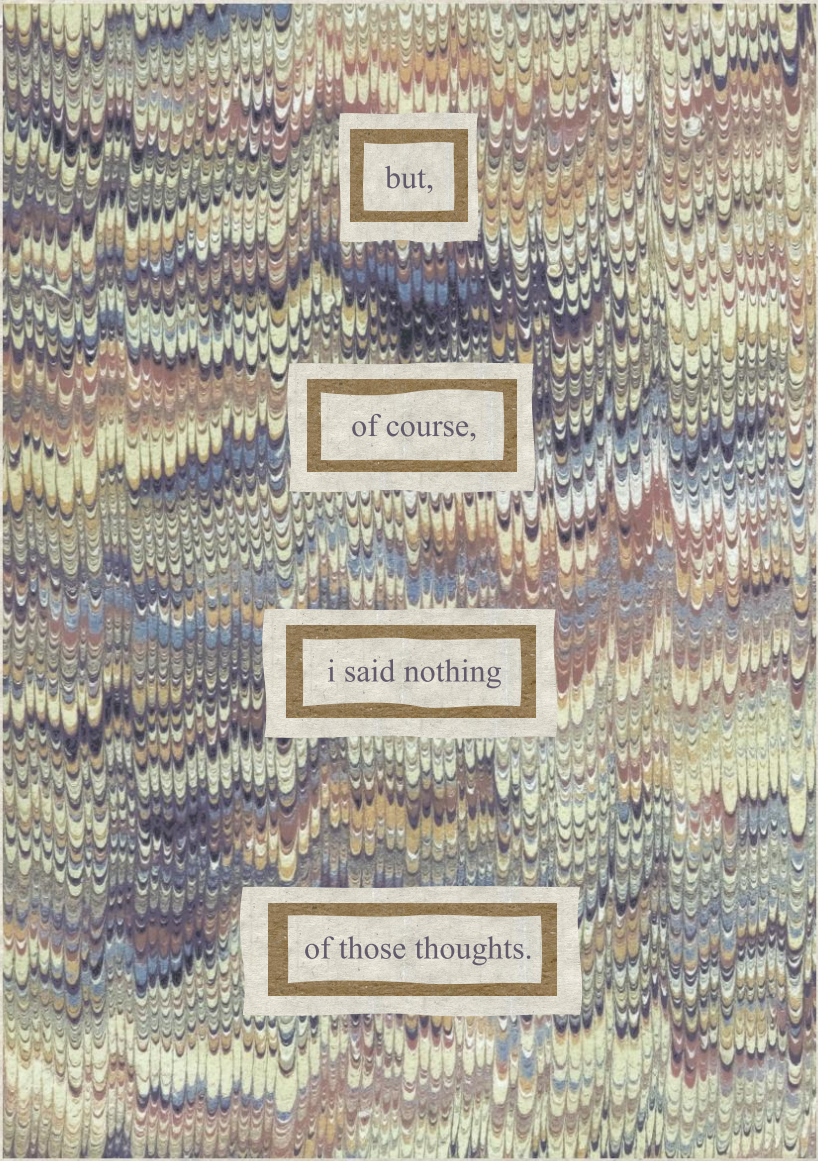

as your beautiful body was

disfigured

for our own

comfort

but,

of course,

i said nothing

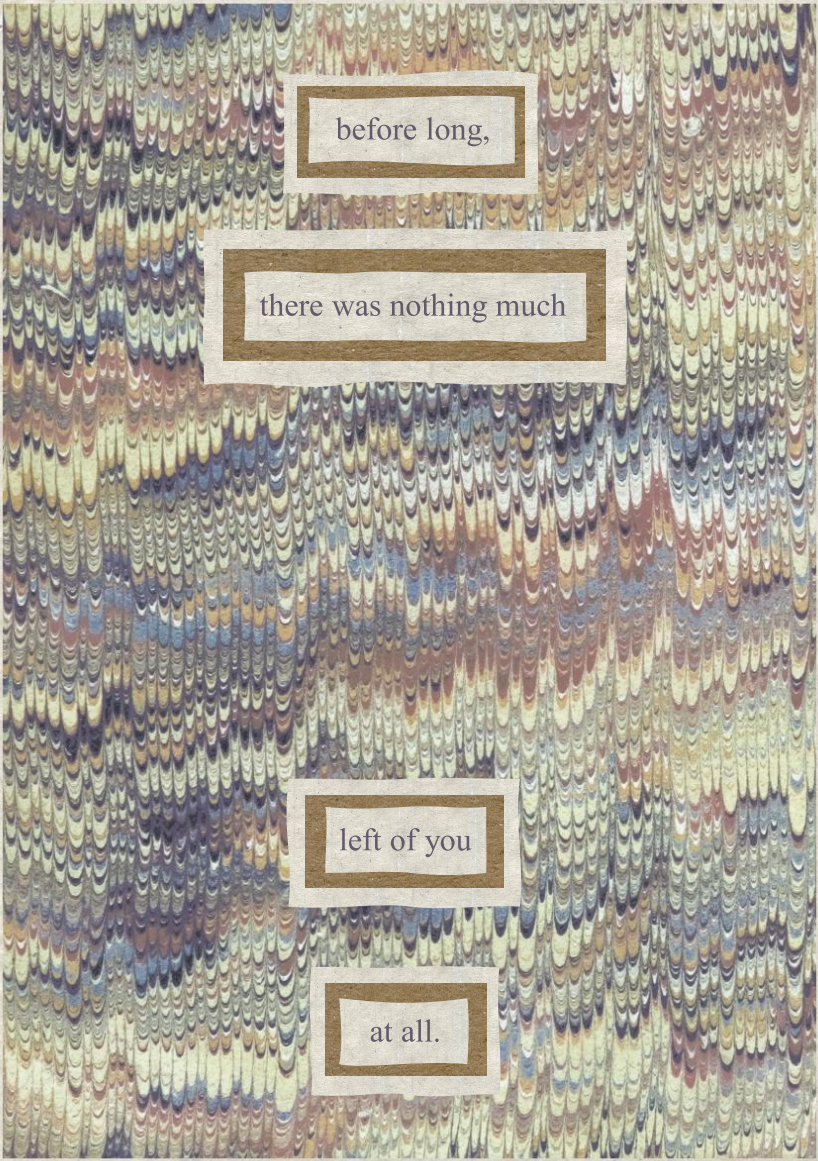

of those thoughts.

silence.

silence.

before long,

there was nothing much

left of you

at all.

you're alive,

you must be.

azurlal.github.io/lillian-galbraith